The woman kept still and the detective told the Magistrate that she had been arrested in the precinct before. The Magistrate said he did not care; what he wanted to know was the offense she had committed on Saturday night. The detective repeated that she was "loitering."
"Walking up and down the street, I sup-

A third woman was charged with stopping men on the street and speaking to them. The policeman did not hear what she had said to them.

"Why don't you get evidence against these women if you expect me to hold them?" said the Magistrate.

"We have been arresting them right along," said the policeman, "when we know their character and see them talking to men on the street."

"Well, you need not arrest any more in this way while I am in this court. The arrests are clearly unlawful and I do not propose to be a party to such proceedings. I will discharge all such women brought before me, and you are wasting your time and the taxpayers' money in such a business."

ness."
The detective asserted that he was only acting on the orders of his superior.
"I don't care whose orders they are," declared the Magistrate. "I will not uphold the unlawful arrests ordered by any captain or inspector."
"We have complaints from clergymen in account about these women and we

we have complaints from the gymen and we want to oblige the clergymen."

"Let the complaining clergymen get their young men to assist in getting legal evidence against the women they complain of. Let them bring their young men up from Chinatown where they are so active, and obtain them bring their young men up from China-town, where they are so active, and obtain evidence in these cases. Your superiors have no right to order you to do an illegal act," said the Magistrate as he discharged the women.

Other policemen from the same precinct and some from the East Twenty-second street station arraigned women on the usual affidavits. Usually the policeman admitted that he didn't know what the women said to the men to whom they spoke on the street. All of the twenty-seven women with one exception were discharged. The one got a $5 fine.

BAND OF BOY BURGLARS.

Mystery of Many Jersey City Robberies Solved by Confession of 14-Year-Old.

Chief of Police Murphy of Jersey City believes that the mystery of a series of burglaries in the do wntown section has been cleared by the confession of fourteen-yearold Willie Rlair, who says he was a member of a gang of juvenile robbers which has operated with much success in the last three months.

Willie was caught while trying to pawn a gold watch stolen from Henry Meyer's candy store, 136 Newark avenue. Pawnbroker Rice looked at Willie and then at the watch and concluded that it fitted the description sent out by the police of a watch which had been stolen. He called in Policeman Fennessy, who arrested Willie.

The boy had a heart to heart talk with Detective Sergeants William B. Prescott and Alexander Gallagher, and said he guessed the jig was up. He peached on the members of "de gang" and gave a list of the places they had robbed. The police made a collection tour around the pawnshops and recovered property stolen from seven stores and houses, including four watches, watch chains, silverware, opera glasses and lor-

The boys entered houses which had been vacated by the occupants for the summer and carried off booty at their leisure. They broke into the stores at night, using jimmies to force doors and windows. The police gave out the following list of places which had been robbed:

Henry Meyer's candy store, 138 Newark avenue, safe rifled; Albert E. Roy's grocery store, 88 Newark avenue; Brown Trading Stamp Company, 88 Newark avenue; George H. White's drug store, 190 Newark avenue; Mrs. Harriet Romaine's residence, 304 Grove street; Mrs. Betz, 243 Eighth street, and Mr. Craven's residence in Mercer street.

PAID $100 TO BE A PLUMBER, And Then Wasn't One, So Isaaes Charges Hart With Extortion.

John Hart of 425 East Seventy-sixth street was held in $1,000 bail for examination yesterday in the Essex Market police court on a charge of extortion. Jacob Isaacs of 281 Madison street, who appeared against him, declared that Hart promised to secure for him a master plumber's license from the for him a master plumber's icense from the civil service examiners on the payment of $100. Isaacs said he paid the money and then got an examination blank, which he studied for weeks. Hart, he says, then demanded more money, and he became suspicious and consulted the Civil Service Commissioners, who advised him to have

YES, GLOISTEIN IS IT AGAIN

HE FITS OUT GUS ANGER FOR KLONDIKE EXPLORATION.

The Retired Baker Has Misfortunes on Paper Which Cause Gloistein to Ship More Supplies-Now the Fisherman's Lawyers Have Much Work to Do About It.

August J. Gloistein, president of the Gloistein Fishing Club, consulted his lawyers yesterday with a view of bringing what he said was "a suit for fooling a man by false pretenses," against Gus Anger, the retired baker.

Anger is interested in tin mines in Alaska and a company of which he is a director has established a city there known as Tin City. The city is way up in the Nome dis-trict. Several weeks ago Anger, who is an old friend and a tormentor of Gloistein, visited him in his hotel in East Forty-second street and said:

"I am sorry, Gus, but I have got to go up to the Klondike again. The last time I was there I nearly froze to death. I have got to start to-night. I may never see you

"Ach. dot vos too hadt," said Gloistein Here, Gus, led me gif you some goodt visky undt cigars. Dey tell me dot visky iss von tollar a drink undt eigars four tollars each up in dot iceberg blace." Gloistein loaded Anger's two valises with bottles of whisky, brandy and cigars.

"Good-by, Gus," said Anger, "I may never see you alive again."

"Goodt-by, goodt-by," replied Gloistein, as tears trickled down his face. "If you ged in droubles, delephone me py cable or vire ess vire."

Anger, who has made the trip to the Klondike region several times, has friends among the hotel clerks in hostelries across the continent where he stopped. They helped him out in his joke on Gloistein. Anger never left New York on this occasion, but he wrote letters to these hotel clerks in Syracuse, Buffalo, Chicago, Omaha, Denver, San Francisco and Tacoma, enclosing letters supposed to be written from these points and asking the clerks to enclose them in envelopes of their respective hotel and mail them to Gloistein at various times

The first letter came back from Syracuse The first letter came back from Syracuse. It read in part: "Dear Gus.—I am going by easy stages. I had a terrible experience last night. The hotel caught fire and I had to get out by the fire escape. I lost all your good presents, all my clothes, but I saved my money. Send me some more of your good case goods to the Iroquois Hotel in Buffalo, where I next arrive."

"You bedt I do," said Gloistein, as he despatched the case.

The next letter received by Choistein read: "I was just leaving the town last night when I met with a terrible accident. The train ran off the track and several people were killed. I lost all my luggage. I got a sprained ankle, but am able to continue my journey on crutches. I had this case of yours on the train, but it was all demolished. My next stop is at Denver."

Gloistein read these letters to a crowd of Anger's friends in his hotel and wept. About a week ago, Gloistein got a letter saying that Anger had left Tacoma for the Klondike. "I go to the frozen North, and I may be frozen in an iceberg," the letter read.

The China Sale Spreads a New Feast for Housekeepers Today

Last week the China Sale smashed every previous selling record in September Sales. It was a splendid public endorsement of Wanamaker merchandising.

Of course there was every reason under the sun that it should do so. The reputation built by past occasions was a great factor. Assembling fifty per cent. more wares to select from was another. Then the remarkable number of groups of all sorts of wares AT JUST HALF PRICE probably created

This is the case in Springfield, Mass., with 62,000 population Trenton with 72,000, and Newport, Fitchburg, Taunton, McKeesport, Meridan, Waterbury and Portland. Of the thirty-three cities from which Mr. Harris received replies only one has a governing body more expensive than East Orange. That is Kansas City, Mo., and there the Councilmen receive $5 a meeting and are limited to sixty meetings and there are twenty-eight members.

East Orange, with ten Council members, paid out $5,690. Orange, with fifteen Aldermen expended the smallest sum, $1,022. The average of all the places was about $300 a year, and most of the cities

WRONG BODY TO CEMETERY. Greve, Supposed to Have Been Killed by Trelley, Turns Up All Right.

OBANGE, N. J., Sept. 10 .- A new complication has arisen in the case of the man found dead and mutilated on a trolley track in Hilton. Mrs. Grove of 375 Main street East Orange, identified the body as that of her husband John by tattoo marks. Grove, it is now said by the Grove family, is alive and working in Poughkeepsie.

The body was placed in a coffin and taken yesterday to the Cemetery of the Holy Sepulchre. Last night Mrs. Grove decided that the body was not that of her husband. It appears that Mrs. Grove and her sons were somewhat in doubt about the identity when they left Kuns's morgue, in Orange, on Saturday morning. They received in-formation that Grove was in Poughkeepsie. They sent word to the address given there and received a message from him saying he was well and had a good job.

The body was brought back to the Orange morgue this afternoon and will be held for identification. Prosecutor's Detectives Howard and Duoker are again, working on the supposition that the man was murdered and his body placed on the track.

On the arrival of the train at the Brooklyn terminal of the bridge one of the guards, who was off duty, attempted to remove the chain which separates the local and through cars that he might take a seat in the local car after the passengers had got out. The guard on duty warned him to keep his hands off the chain. An argument resulted and the men started to beat each other. They were at it fully half a minute before being separated by a bridge cop. Says He Came From Heaven to Raise Hell on Earth.

ORANGE, N. J., Sept. 10 .- Andrew Beranskie, who is demented, escaped from his boarding place in Joyce street. West Orange, to-day. According to a local police official the missing man believes he was sent down from heaven to raise hell on earth." He boarded with a family named Buskingek. This morning it was decided to have him committed to an asylum, so one of the men of the house went to Dr. William M. Brien to have Beranskie examined.
